

Congratulations, you are an Anne!

Often in the shadow of more confident people socially, your shyness can't hide the fact that you have a big heart, an enquiring mind and a radical streak. Though sometimes your quiet good manners are mistaken by others as meekness, actually you are brave and far-sighted and you don't let convention stop you from challenging social injustice when you see it.

You need to guard against becoming withdrawn and emotionally isolated. Expressing your feelings might seem risky but remember that you have great instincts to help you connect to others – life is short so dare to make your move!

